

SAFETY TIPS

Safety Increases Production

Workplace injuries can cause downtime, which effects your profitability goals for the following reasons:

- The absence - whether brief or lengthy - of an experienced employee can cause others to have to work overtime, increase the likelihood of other short-handed employee injuries, and require the hiring and training of a replacement worker.
- Some injuries involve customers or vendors with probable litigation settlements.
- Damage to equipment, facilities or other property can result.
- State and federal inspectors may visit and levy fines.
- Employee injuries can cause significant increases in insurance costs.

Help protect your financial bottom line by maximizing production through minimizing employee injuries. Develop and use an effective, practical safety program.
